3. Creation of security interest

- (1) A security interest is created by a transaction that in substance secures payment or performance of an obligation, without regard to the form of the transaction, where a borrower or a third party who has title to the collateral willingly creates a security interest in favour of the lender.
- (2) Despite subsection (1), this Act does not apply to a security interest in a deposited Warehouse Receipt as provided for under the Securities Industry Act, 2016 (Act 929).

Effectiveness of a security interest between the lender and borrower and collateral description

5. Execution of a credit agreement

A credit agreement that creates a security interest in property shall be executed in writing, and the credit agreement shall consist of one or more tangible documents or electronic records which, taken together, establish the intent of the parties.

6. Security interest between the borrower and lender

- (1) Despite section 22, a security interest created by a credit agreement, is effective between the parties to the agreement without registration under this Act, but the right of the lender to enforce the security interest is subject to the rights of any other lender or person entitled to priority under this Act.
- (2) A credit agreement shall identify
 - (a) the lender;
 - (b) the borrower;
 - (c) the collateral; and
 - (d) the secured obligation.
- (3) A security interest in property that the borrower acquires after the borrower has entered into a credit agreement shall become effective without a written consent of the borrower or any further act of the borrower
 - (a) when the borrower acquires rights to the property; and
 - (b) if the property falls under the collateral description in the credit agreement.
- (4) A borrower may provide a written consent for the security interest to extend to movable property which includes consumer goods, acquired after a credit agreement has been entered into.

7. Non-transfer of title

A security interest in property shall not operate as a transfer of title in the property from the borrower to the lender.

8. Sufficient description of collateral

- (1) A credit agreement shall contain a description of the collateral that reasonably identifies the property to be provided as collateral.
- (2) For the purposes of this section, the description of the collateral may be generic or specific.

- (3) For the purpose of this section, a description in the form of the expression- “all inventory”, “all receivables” or “all movable property” - of the borrower is sufficient.
- (4) Despite anything to the contrary in this section the description of an immovable property shall
 - (a) be specific; and
 - (b) include
 - (i) the location,
 - (ii) the size, and
 - (iii) the geographical coordinates of the immovable property.

9. Sufficient description of secured obligations

A credit agreement may describe secured obligations generically, including by a reference to all payment obligations specified under a credit agreement for which the security interest may be enforced.

10. Automatic extension of security interest

- (1) After a security interest is created and becomes effective between the lender and borrower, it shall automatically extend to any identifiable proceeds of the collateral whether or not the credit agreement contains a description of the proceeds as provided in this Act.
- (2) Where proceeds in the form of money or funds credited to a bank account are commingled with other assets of the same kind,
 - (a) the security interest extends to the commingled assets, notwithstanding that the proceeds have ceased to be identifiable;
 - (b) the security interest in the commingled assets is limited to the amount of the proceeds immediately before they were commingled; and
 - (c) if at any time after the commingling, the amount of the commingled money or of the balance credited to the bank account is less than the amount of the proceeds immediately before they were commingled, the security interest in the commingled assets is limited to the lowest amount between the time when the proceeds were commingled and the time when the security interest is claimed.

11. Contractual limitations on the creation of a security interest in account receivables

- (1) A security interest in an account receivable is effective as between the borrower and the lender and as against the debtor of the account receivable despite any agreement that in any way limits the right of the borrower to create a security interest.
- (2) A party to an agreement may not avoid the contract giving rise to the account receivable or the credit agreement on the sole ground of the breach of that agreement, or raise against the lender any claim the party may have as a result of the breach against the borrower.
- (3) Nothing in this section affects any obligation or liability of the borrower for breach of the agreement referred to in subsection (1).

12. Contractual limitations on the creation of a security interest in deposit accounts

Where a borrower creates a security interest in a deposit account the security interest is effective despite an agreement between the borrower and a bank or specialised deposit-taking institution that limits the right of the borrower to create that security interest in that deposit account.

13. Contractual limitations on the creation of a security interest in intellectual property

A security interest in a tangible property with respect to which intellectual property is used, does not extend to the intellectual property and a security interest in the intellectual property does not extend to the tangible property.

14. Achieving third-party effectiveness

- (1) A security interest created and registered under this Act is effective against a third party.
- (2) A security interest shall continue to be effective against a third party for as long as the registration of the security interest has not been discharged.

- (1) Except as otherwise provided in this Act, a security interest in collateral which is effective against a third party shall
 - (a) continue where the collateral has been disposed of, unless the lender has authorised the disposition; and
 - (b) extend to the proceeds.
- (2) If a lender enforces the security interest against both the collateral and the proceeds, the realisation of the security interest is limited to the value of the collateral at the date of the disposition that gave rise to the proceeds.

16. Security interest with respect to proceeds

- (1) A security interest with respect to proceeds shall continue to be effective against third parties where
 - (a) the security interest in the original collateral has, by registration, been made effective against third parties; and
 - (b) the proceeds are
 - (i) of a kind that is within the description of the collateral in the registration; or
 - (ii) cash proceeds as defined in section 85.
- (2) A security interest in proceeds not covered by paragraph (b) of subsection (1) is effective against third parties until the expiration of ten days after the proceeds are realised.
- (3) The security interest in proceeds referred to in subsection (2) shall cease to be effective against third parties if the lender does not amend the registration within ten days after the proceeds are realised.

17. Concurrent registration of security interest

- (1) A security interest that covers a right to property which is registered in another registry is effective against third parties where the lender satisfies the requirements under this Act.
- (2) Despite subsection (1), the registration of a security interest in collateral under this Act, does not dispense with any registration requirements under other applicable laws.

33. Priority of registration

A security interest registered under this Act shall, irrespective of the time of registration, have priority over any other security interest registered under any other enactment.

34. Priority between security interests

Priority between security interests in the same collateral shall be determined by the order of the registration of the security interest unless otherwise provided in sections 35 to 40.

35. Priority of a security interest in proceeds

Subject to section 16, priority of a security interest in original collateral shall extend to proceeds from that collateral.

36. Subordination of priority

- (2) The agreement to subordinate the priority of a security interest shall not adversely affect the rights of a person who is not a party to the agreement.

37. Priority of future advances

The priority of a security interest extends to all secured obligations, including obligations incurred after the security interest becomes effective against third parties to the extent of the maximum amount stated in the registration.

38. Priority of purchase money security interest

- (1) A purchase money security interest in collateral or the proceeds of the purchase money security interest in collateral, other than inventory, has priority over a non-purchase money security interest in the same collateral created by the same borrower, where the purchase money security interest in the collateral or the proceeds of the purchase money security interest in collateral is made effective against third parties by registration not later than five days after the day on which the borrower obtained possession of the collateral.
